Senate Rejects Truman's Choice of Igenfritz as Munitions Board Chairman

Has $70,000 Job Demand Is Made That $14,000 Post Get Full Time of Occupant

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—President Truman's search for someone to head the defense department's munitions board begins all over again today—and under different rules.

By a 40 to 28 vote the Senate yesterday rejected Mr. Truman's nomination of Carl A. Igenfritz to be chairman of the board because Igenfritz would have continued to receive his $70,000 yearly salary as a vice president of United States Steel.

The Senate vote effectively wrote into law the precedent that a government official who gets full pay—$14,000 yearly in the case of the board chairman—will have to give up his salary from private industry.

To counter this set-back, at least in part, Mr. Truman had the promise of some of his leaders that the Senate will approve Monday the appointment of John Carson of Michigan as a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Senators agreed to vote at 11:30 a. m. (E.S.T.) in what looked like a party line vote with the Democrats in the winning side.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.)—object of Mr. Truman's recent jibe that there are too many Byrds in Congress—led the fight that scuttled the Igenfritz nomination.

It was the major presidential appointment the Virginia has blocked. His vote was the deciding one when the Senate Military Affairs Committee voted on the nomination of former Gov. Mon C. Wallgren of Washington to head the National Security Resources Board.

Igenfritz did not want the Munitions Board job in the first place, according to Senator Tydings (D-Md.), said he couldn't give up his $70,000 pay because he would lose his pension and other benefits.

Tydings argued that Igenfritz was the only man in sight for the job. It calls for direction of advance planning for industrial mobilization, the fixing of priorities on materials and the allocation of government buying authority.

In a telegram read to the Senate during the debate, Igenfritz offered to work for the government for nothing. But he added he didn't believe any such arrangement would be legal.

Byrd insisted that it would be bad precedent to let government officials draw pay from private companies.

Some of Mr. Truman's staunchest supporters in the Senate voted against the nomination. They included such Democrats as Senators Humphrey of Minnesota, Kerr of Oklahoma, Magnuson of Washington, McMahon of Connecticut and O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

Republicans split about evenly, with 12 for confirmation and 18 against. The Democratic count was 16 for and 22 against.

Canners are Urged To Make Appointments

The Kingston Canning Center at the intersection of Flatbush avenue and the East Chester street by-pass has been working at capacity during the past month.

Present demand for the facilities at the center is so great that those in charge urge patrons to make appointments by telephone. Anyone may make an appointment by calling Kingston 5637 or 4458-W between 9 a. m. and 7 p. m. daily.

Large quantities of tomatoes, tomato juice, beans, beets, carrots, corn, peaches, plums, pears and apple sauce are being canned at present. These products are still plentiful in this area and are priced reasonably.

Announcement has been made that the canning center will remain in operation this fall as long as there is a sufficient number of people interested in preserving food. An instructor is present at all times to teach and supervise the canning process.

Democrats Easy, 500,000 ALPs Big Thorn to State GOP

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP)—Sen. John Foster Dulles (R-N.Y.) says that "leftwingers hanging onto the Democratic coat tails" are more of a problem for his party than the Democrats.

"The Democratic party in the state of New York is a pushover," Dulles said last night. "The real trouble we Republicans face are the 500,000 ALPs (American Labor party members), Communists and leftwingers hanging onto the Democratic coat tails."

Dulles, who is opposed by former Governor Herbert H. Lehman, the Democratic and Liberal party candidate, in a U. S. senatorial election this fall, spoke at a meeting of the Nassau county Republican committee.

He described leftwing elements as "a highly organized, disciplined group," and added:

"Their main purpose this year is to defeat Dulles."

"The Republicans," he said, "must put on a comparable campaign to these A.L.P.s and Communists who work night and day and week-ends. They work hard. The answer of true Americans must be to work harder."

Dulles is serving an interim appointment in the Senate, pending outcome of the election this fall.

He attacked the domestic policies of the Truman administration, declaring these policies run "directly contrary" to the program the United States advocates abroad.

He charged that while President Truman is fighting centralization of government abroad, he is seeking to build up that kind of government at home.

"There are already in Europe many governments that are all-powerful and highly centralized," he said, "and we are trying to prevent the spread of that system to free Europe."

Dulles said that was the issue between the Soviets and the western powers in Germany. Russia insisted on a powerful central government, he said, while the American bi-partisan position was to oppose central control over such

Capture Virginia Man Accused of Stealing Wages

Arthur Wright Arrested for Leaving Farm With $82 Belonging to Laborers

A 29-year-old farm laborer who state police charged ran off with $82 in pay belonging to nine other workers was returned to this county Friday afternoon for hearing on a petit larceny charge.

State police at Highland alleged that Arthur Wright, 29, originally of Prince George's county, Virginia, organized a team of farm workers on Long Island last June and month and paid their way to Ulster county. Under the agreement the nine men in the team were to repay Wright from their earnings, state police said.

According to charges brought against Wright, the men obtained employment at the Ackerman Farm in Ohioville. On September 3 Wright allegedly collected pay for the extra group. He was to keep the money he had advanced for transportation and distribute the remainder, about $82, to the other workers, state police said. Instead, the authorities alleged, Wright disappeared with the entire amount.

Wright was apprehended Friday by state police at Riverhead and was brought back to Ulster county. Arraigned late Friday night before Justice of the Peace E. C. Barnes of New Paltz, Wright pleaded innocent to the petit larceny charge. He was held in the Ulster county jail in lieu of $100 bail for hearing before Justice Barnes on September 19.

Top G.I. Dividend Checks Will Be $528, V.A. Says

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—Some 16,000,000 World War II veterans can now figure out the life insurance dividend checks they may expect within the next nine months.

Under the deceptively simple formula announced by the Veterans Administration yesterday, a minority of them—but a minority of many thousands—may get a maximum of $528 each.

For the younger ex-G.I.s, the dividend rate is 55 cents a month for each $1,000 of insurance. For those over 40 when the policy was issued, there is a descending scale, with a minimum rate of 20 cents a month for each $1,000 taken out by a man of 55 or over.

The top checks go to the 40-or-under policyholders who (a), took out the maximum amount of insurance—$10,000 in 1940, when it first became available and (b) retained it in full force for the 96 months that followed.

The $2,500,000,000 special dividend to be paid in the first six months of 1950 covers all national service life insurance policies through their anniversary date in 1948.

The Veterans Administration had planned to make the dividend formula public next Sunday. There was a mix-up over release time, however, so that the announcement was moved up.

The formula:

For those age 40 or younger at issue, multiply 55 cents times each $1,000, times each month the policy was in effect before its 1948 anniversary date; age 41, 52 cents; 42, 49 cents; 43, 46 cents; 44, 43 cents; 45, 40 cents; 46, 37 cents; 47, 34 cents; 48, 31 cents; 49, 28 cents; 50, 25 cents; 51, 22 cents; 52, 19 cents; 53, 16 cents; 54, 13 cents; 55 and over, 20 cents.

V.A. officials warned that in many cases the formula is not as simple to apply as it appears.

The reason is that many veterans changed the face value of their policies several times and many allowed them to lapse several times. V.A. has the exact dates of these changes, but few veterans are believed to have kept accurate records.

The dividend will be paid at the same rate on both term and converted policies. It is not subject to income tax. Veterans must apply for it.

Application blanks are available at all postoffices and veterans centers.

Expect Sharp Retorts

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson's blunt criticism of a Senate plan to bar subversive aliens from this country is expected to bring sharp repercussions from Capitol Hill.

Acheson's letter saying that the measure would "drastically interfere" with U. S. foreign policy was sent two months ago to Chairman McCarran (D-Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee, but came to light only yesterday.

The bill's author, is on his way to Europe and therefore could not be reached for comment.

A 50-foot lot will accommodate this neat, well-arranged bungalow, "The Brockton," and leave plenty of room for a garage driveway. The cost of the house may be reduced by limiting basement excavation to the space under living room, kitchen and bath.

Electric Switches

Don't forget modern lighting methods when electrical circuits are installed for your basement. Three-way light switches are probably more necessary here than in any other part of the house, and should be installed at the head and foot of the basement stairs with a light directly above the stairs. Accidents because of poor lighting in the basement occur much too frequently.

L-Shaped Cottage Advantages Will Justify Extra Expense

Such a Design Is Seen in "The Brockton," All-on-One-Floor Dwelling—Variation Provides Distinctive Appearance

Although it will cost slightly more to build than a house with a rectangular plan, the L-shaped cottage, "The Brockton," introduced today by the "Home of the Week" Plan Service, has certain distinct advantages which justify the extra expense.

This all-on-one-floor dwelling, for instance, can be built on a lot with a 50-foot frontage and still leave room at either side for a cement driveway to a detached garage. The recessed front entrance at the angle of the "L" affords protection for callers as they wait at the door in inclement weather. Furthermore, the variation from the usual box-type construction gives this cottage a pleasing and distinctive appearance.

Can Cut Down Cubage While total cubage of The Brockton is only 14,500 feet, this may be reduced to 12,500 feet by limiting the basement excavation to the area under the living room, kitchen and bathroom.

The outside walls of The Brockton may be finished with either shingles or clapboards, painted or stained. One man who built this house found blue-gray walls with bright-green shutters, and trim and a green roof a good combination.

The front door opens into a small vestibule with a large coat closet. A door or arch at the left of the entry leads to a large living room, 16x11 feet in dimensions. Balancing the door from the front entry, in the same wall of the room, another door opens on a

Compact Kitchen

The kitchen has two windows and a glazed door opening on the back yard. Working counter, sink and wall cabinets fill one outside wall of the kitchen, the other being left clear for a breakfast suite. Range and refrigerator are provided for in the room plan and stairs to the basement lead down from the kitchen.

A linen closet is built into the inner hall, adjacent to the bathroom. The bedrooms, 12x11 and 12x9 feet respectively, each have two windows and a clothes closet. Insulation should be installed over all room ceilings. The overall dimensions of the Brockton are 33x21 feet.

Plans Are Available

Complete plans and specifications for this house, "The Brockton," the "Home of the Week" or any other design of this series, are available at moderate cost. To ascertain the exact price of these documents, write to the Home Building Editor, The Kingston Daily Freeman, and enclose a self-addressed envelope bearing a three-cent stamp. At least one week should be allowed for a reply.

(Released by the "Home of the Week" Plan Service.)

Selecting Your Lighting Fixtures

Many home decorators express the theory that a room is judged by its accessories. If this is true, the selection of lighting fixtures should be done with considerable care, for no accessory occupies a more focal position than the source of light.

Odd-shaped lighting fixtures or those striking and unusual design, unless the room is sufficiently interesting to make the lamps complementary, detract from the harmony of a room. Because of the prominence of lighting fixtures in the decorative scheme, the home owner should regard them not merely as a functional unit but as a decorative unit as well.

Simplicity in design is urged by competent authorities, who point out that extreme styles of lighting fixtures decline rapidly in value due to the whims of fashion. For the home owner who wishes inconspicuous fixtures, it is best to select neutral colors and finishes as well as simple and conventional shapes.

Replacing old and unattractive lighting fixtures with those of modern design is frequently a valuable device in modernizing the interior of a house. Owners of homes of Colonial English or French design will find fixtures styled for period interiors. Lighting fixtures which are structurally sound and give proper light distribution need not be unattractive or monotonous. Lighting fixtures are now available that are ornamental as well as functional.

Luminous Paints

Luminous paints have proven successful in hospitals, where their use on walls, ceiling and floors of hospital operating rooms has eliminated shadows from hands and instruments and provided a reserve of light during power failure. Hired into 2 quarts of hot water put 1 tablespoon tungsten, 1 in. glass, 1/2 teaspoon milk, 1/2 teaspoon jelly or powder. It will bring back the gloss immediately.

Don't Be Afraid To Pile on Coal

One of the commonest mistakes made by women who have to tend the furnace while their husbands are away is to think that a thick fire is wasteful and a thin fire economical. As a matter of fact, it's the other way around. A thin fire lets the air pass up through the bed of burning coal too rapidly. This means that at one and the same time the coal burns too fast, and too large a share of the heat is carried up the chimney in the smoke and flue gases.

Always keep the furnace fire-pot full. It was designed for that depth of fire. If it burns too fast and the house gets too warm, turn the smokepipe damper open and check draft at the top wide, and close the bottom drafts. If the fire still needs slowing down, open the furnace door for a quarter of half hour. But keep a good thick bed of coal all the time.

Closets in Bathroom And Kitchen Useful

There is no more convenient spot than the bathroom in which to have a closet to hold linens and extra supplies. A closet only eleven inches deep takes up little space in the bathroom and yet is adequate for the purpose and also provides an excellent place for hanging the towels in daily use. Holes for ventilation should be provided in the door to give a circulation of air.

It is also very convenient to have in the kitchen a small cupboard with screened doors in which to cool food too hot to be immediately placed in the refrigerator.

Mixture Restores Gloss

Sometimes paint that has been given a particularly good scrubbing remains dull and unfinished. The following mixture will wash the paint and leave a fine glossy finish. Into 2 quarts of hot water put 1 tablespoon tungsten, 1 in. glass, 1/2 teaspoon milk, 1/2 teaspoon jelly or powder. It will bring back the gloss immediately.

Nationally Advertised Brands Week Observed

All this week your neighborhood druggist is celebrating Nationally Advertised Brands Week. Use this important occasion to get better acquainted with him.

Nationally Advertised Brands Week was originated in 1938 to call the general public's attention to the merits of familiar drug products and to spotlight the position of druggists in every community. Articles sold in the drug store are essential to the life and health of the public, and any event that focuses attention on the advisability of patronizing these reliable products, is a noteworthy one.

The manufacturer who produces his preparation by the scores of thousands, who spends money for research for the improvement of his product, who invests in every advertising medium to bring his product before the public eye, must have a product that is worthy of his name and effort. Furthermore, because of his large scale production, such a nationally known manufacturer is enabled to sell his product at a price that's attractive as the article itself.

Druggists and drug manufacturers are not the only ones who will benefit from Nationally Advertised Brands Week. You, the consumer, will benefit by a greater knowledge of drug stores, quality products and how to buy them. You will welcome Nationally Advertised Brands Week as an opportunity to get better acquainted with your neighborhood druggist, to learn more about the many services he renders to help keep you healthy and happy.

So now you can see what the big commotion is about in local drug stores. This year, Nationally Advertised Brands Week started September 16 and will be over September 26. Your favorite druggist invites you to visit him during this week and every week. Drop in and get better acquainted with the men in the profession that has done so much to promote the highest ethical standards and to help keep the nation healthy.

The service will be largely a "congregational service" with the congregation singing many of the old familiar hymns such as "Praise Him," "He Keeps Me Singing," "Since Jesus Came Into My Life," "Never Give Up," "In My Heart There Is a Melody" and many other familiar hymns.

Raymond Howe, music director, will direct the music. The choir will sing as a special number the Twenty-Seventh Psalm. There will also be a duet, "Ivory Palaces" by Mrs. Alexander Mains and Mrs. Rowland Maxon.

The public is invited to participate in the services. Following the two special Sunday evening services the members will join with other churches of the city in the five union services which will be held in various churches of the city beginning October 2.

THE TOP DOG

The bitterness between the Navy and the Air Force has again been brought out for public view as one result of the affair of the B-36 bomber. It recalls the quarrels over the 70-air group Air Force and Navy supercarrier. As in those instances, it seems now that the crux of the trouble is the yearning of each of the services to be top dog in the national defense system. The Army, although not deeply involved in the present scrap, nevertheless gets into the competition.

There is no room for any top dog among the services, nor any practical use for one. The whole system has one single mission, the defense of the nation. The task of fulfilling that mission ought to occupy all of the time and energies of the various services, with none to spare for squabbling over which one will win the next war.

It is true that there are fundamental differences of view among competent military planners as to just what weapons and forces should be developed for future defense. But sound military decisions are hardly likely to result from efforts to rally public opinion in favor of this method or that. It may never be decided with absolute assurance that air power should be developed in one particular way and that all other ways are wrong. But a decision must be made to take one course or another, and then all hands must put their differences aside and help to accomplish the mission according to the chosen plan.

FOOD FOR GERMANY

One of the peculiar problems arising from the division of Germany into Eastern and Western areas is that of food supply for the West, because the principal agricultural regions are in Eastern and Polish territory. When Germany was a national unit the food grown in these regions went to the rest of the nation, but now little of it finds its way across the zonal border. Instead it goes eastward into other Russian territory.

Authorities seek to make Western Germany self-sufficient as far as food supply is concerned. This involves a big job of land reclamation and educating farmers to new crops and methods. If the attempt is successful the Germany of the future, whether divided or reunited, will have a different character. It should be better fed by its own efforts, and future rabble-rousers might be able to make a less effective argument for pillaging the neighbors.

GROWING OLD

The art of happily growing old is a perennial topic of debate. Always there are two fundamental schools of thought and never is there any conclusion. One idea is that continued activity keeps the body from giving in to the effects of age. Followers of this idea never really retire; they merely exchange one job for another, or convert a hobby into full occupation. Others advocate slowed activity and more relaxation to save the body from wearing out.

Is there one answer to the question of which is right? Apparently there will always be as many answers as there are people who confess to growing old. And probably every answer is right, just as each evening is usually right for the day it follows.

Most people have their own special memorable dates. But for the hay fever sufferer there is one which outranks all others—the first autumn frost.

WOMEN AND THE VOTE

"Sensible and responsible women do not want to vote," once said a man well acquainted with public affairs. The recollection shows the distance that the United States has traveled since 1905, the date of this utterance. The speaker was former President Grover Cleveland, whose early liberalism had hardened into an unyielding conservatism. This point of view may have affected his opinion on woman suffrage, but it seems to have been true that forty years ago only a minority of women actively

THE DOLLAR AGREEMENT

The British are doing the best they can to meet the consequences of two fatal wars, the loss of an empire, the destruction of the value and the fluidity of the pound sterling and a fruitless experiment in socialism which is depressing further an already falling standard of living. Their situation would have been altogether hopeless, were it not for a free gift of about $50,000,000,000 from the American people over a period of 10 years and a continued willingness to do more. The danger to Great Britain is that the British people will come to rely upon this gift; the danger is aggravated by the possibility that Americans will come to feel that they are being taxed about $5,000,000,000 for a country not their own.

In a word, the United States is providing a cushion against a great historic failure. Thus far, no plan has proved of real value. Bretton Woods, the British Loan, the Marshall Plan have been palliatives without lasting results. And the British have again come forth with a complex plan that avoids an outright "loan" or even an additional gift, but does provide for numerous and unsound concessions by the United States to the British producer and exporter of goods.

In the Washington conference the British expressed desire to dump goods into the United States and to that, this country gave its consent. We are to provide a "minimum of difficulties," to the British exporters; we are to revise our tariff in their favor; we are to change our customs procedures in their interest; we are to agree to "incentives" for them to engage in this trade; we are even to enter upon joint-account transactions with them in undeveloped areas in such a manner that they are to have "incentives" to do this sort of thing, while we put up the money and underwrite the economic and political risk.

In a word, the arrangements are all in their favor and if we can save them from bankruptcy, maybe it is all to the good. But it would seem that they are taking no steps to save themselves from the consequences of their costly development of a welfare state and their huge increase in the cost of operating a bureaucratic government. We are asked not only to underwrite the stabilization of the pound, the equilibrium, as they call it, in world trade, but also the wildest, most unreasonable and least justifiable experiments in Fabian socialism. And we have agreed to do it.

We have agreed to even more than that. We have agreed to curtail our synthetic rubber industry and to open more widely the market for raw rubber which the British control. This may involve a secret agreement or a tacit understanding with regard to price. After World War I, the British set up a price for raw rubber which ran as high as $1.25 a pound for rubber that should have sold at 12 cents a pound and did eventually. The Stevenson Act, which did this, was a tax on the American automobile industry and was so regarded at the time. The United States broke that by what looked like a threatened boycott and the price of rubber fell to its natural level. Is something like that in the offing?

We have had such disastrous experience with the agreements and contracts that our younger statesmen have made, beginning at Teheran and Yalta, and continuing right through San Francisco and Potsdam, that one is naturally suspicious of the whole thing. The elongated sentences, the use of diplomatic argon, which often makes a thing read differently in the public communiqué from what was actually agreed upon in the conference chamber. Therefore, this rubber business should be examined carefully and publicly to avoid ugliness later on. It may be as innocent as it looks; it may be an agreement to permit the British to lay the American rubber. (Thee.) Similarly, the question of the needs to be examined, particularly to discover whether there is a price deal. The British will control Asiatic tin only as long as the Malay states are under British control. How long is that to be?

NEWS ABOUT LEPROSY

Some months ago I referred to the publication called the "Star," edited and published by the patients of the hospital for lepers at Carville, Louisiana. This publication points out that leprosy, Hansen's disease, is not communicable, never was communicable, and that patients with leprosy should not be isolated.

In "Proceedings of Royal Society of Medicine," London, Dr. R. G. D. Simons quotes Drs. Rogers and Muir as saying, "As long as we had no treatment of material value there was some excuse for the crudities of the middle ages, the lifelong segregation of lepers." Today, however, one can save energy and money by isolating only the malignant type of leprosy, not what is known as the Hansen type—the common form of leprosy. The Hansen type patient, cured of his leprosy and returned home with encouragement, is a danger to no one. Treatment since they will see by this sample that leprosy is no longer a crime which is punished by imprisonment for life, but that it is curable and, certainly, in the great majority of cases, is not contagious. Lepers and sufferers from disease classified as leprosy will no longer fly from police and doctor.

What is the suggestion of Dr. Simons? (1) All patients with infectious leprosy should remain in isolation. Lepers should be called "clinics." (2) The reactions should be negative for at least two years without the appearance of new symptoms before the patient's discharge is considered. (3) All Hansen's patients (nodular leprosy) should be discharged immediately, though they would have to remain under regular supervision of a skin specialist.

The following should be cared for by public health authorities: The leprosy sufferer, from general poor health or who returns to unhealthy and poor environment, or those who are likely to contract tuberculosis—24 to 32 per cent of all lepers die from tuberculosis; and many more suffer from it.

Isolation or segregation should depend not on the diagnosis of leprosy but on the differential diagnosis between infectious malignant leprosy and non-infectious Hansen's leprosy. From leprosy hospitals at present patients are allowed to visit their homes twice a year for a month at a time. How different this is from total isolation of past years.

sought the ballot. The picture changed rapidly. Only fifteen years later the suffrage amendment to the Constitution was adopted, and since then women have been voting in steadily increasing numbers. But the question implied in the Cleveland pronouncement still goes unanswered. What proportion of women really wished to vote? Were the unresisting majority carried along by persistent leaders? It often happens that way, but certainly the majority of women today would not give up the ballot.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—In all the bitter row between the army and the navy, the admirals have failed to let the public know about one naval activity for which they deserve great credit—submarines.

Perhaps this is because the cramped and grimy life of a submarine crew lacks gold and glamor. Also, there are no admirals commanding submarines; their place is on battleships. But at any rate, American submarines have made amazing progress, and undoubtedly will be the most important arm of the navy in the future.

The end of the war saw German submarines with new breathing devices for underwater operation plus a rubber coat which prevented radar detection. If the war had lasted much longer, the new German subs could have wreaked havoc on American shipping once again.

Came V-E Day and the Russian submarine yards together with German scientists. Result: The Russian U-boats today is the most modern in the world.

However, the U. S. Navy, rushing to keep up with the Soviet, has now developed a new snorkel device permitting a sub to breathe underwater for days at a time. U. S. subs are also capable of the amazing underwater speed of 21 knots, though the cruising speed is only about eleven knots.

Not long ago an American U-boat actually crossed the Atlantic to England without once coming to the surface. However, American experts, not happy with this progress, have learned that Russia has developed something better than the snorkel, namely a chemical which generates oxygen and thus feeds the engines without depending on the snorkel's pipe extending to the surface. So the race for modernization of deadly undersea weapons continues.

Note—Top admirals were summoned to Washington from all over the U. S. A. the other day for a secret conference to map a press campaign against further curtailment of the navy. The admirals were worried over the bad press reaction to the B-38 smear. However, they continue their smear tactics by featuring an oft-repeated speaker, Frank Meyer, president of the Navy League, who has been bitterly critical of Secretary of Defense Johnson. The meeting entirely neglected one of the finest and most essential jobs the navy is doing—submarines.

Steel Workers Debate
The steel workers' acceptance of the Fact-Finding Board's proposals in the steel strike wasn't nearly as harmonious as C.I.O. boss Phil Murray indicated to the press.

Murray correctly reported that the steel workers wage policy committee had "unanimous" approval of the board's findings. However, he neglected to say that some local steel union leaders kicked over the traces at a stormy three-hour meeting in Pittsburgh before a vote was taken.

The loudest protests were voiced by local union chiefs in Inland Steel Company plants, who pointed out that they had previously turned down an inland offer approximating the 10-cent-an-hour increase for welfare and pension benefits recommended by the President's Fact-Finding Board.

How, they asked Murray, could they now ask their members to accept something which they already had rejected as unsatisfactory? The local leaders imported Murray to hold out for at least part of the 12½-cent hourly straight wage boost originally demanded by the union. The C.I.O. chief replied that he still considered the 12½-cent increase (in addition to the 10 cents for welfare and pension benefits) a just demand. But he argued that the steel workers probably wouldn't get any more than the board's recommendation even if they staged a walkout. Furthermore, a strike would be inadvisable in view of the strong weight of public opinion behind the Fact-Finding Board.

Let's take what we can get and remain at work," advised the state-militarist Murray. "It realizes that our locals in some plants already are getting substantially what the board recommended and that others have been offered as much. Nevertheless, we are all together in this fight. If some locals have something the rest of our members do not have, let's even it up by accepting the board's proposal. We can come back for more later when the circumstances are favorable."

H. A. Dunn of Austin, Texas, is a slim, slight, cheerful little man who works from about 5:30 a. m. each day as superintendent of the main building at the University of Texas.

Two years ago Mr. Dunn heard there was a need of books in the Philippines to replace the damage done to school libraries during the war. So on his own initiative he set out to do something about it. At the end of school semesters he talked students into donating their used textbooks to "the kids in the Philippines" instead of selling them to the second-hand bookstores.

Mr. Dunn kept boxes out in the hallways to receive the books, and working tirelessly with no help from others, he finally collected and shipped to the Philippines the other day 20,000 books. Mr. Dunn's project was all his own; no sponsors, no organized drive, no money to help him—which makes him, in this column's eyes, a real servant of brotherhood.

MacArthur's Secret Report—Here is the inside reason on why President Truman suddenly agreed to let Congress appropriate $75,000,000 for non-Communist China. Until ten days ago, the President was doing nothing, giving a nickel to the Chinese. But recently he received a secret report from General MacArthur urging him to reconsider. MacArthur said it was possible to delay the Communist offensive indefinitely provided the United States would give aid directly to some of the Chinese warlords who still have big armies in the field. Impressed, the President passed word to Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, to agree; since this plan would by-pass Chiang and let the United States give direct help to the most reliable Chinese non-Communists.

Q—How did the Duke of Wellington come to be called "the Iron Duke?"

Washington all but eliminated Cleveland from flag contention when they nipped the Indians, 5-4. Ray Scarborough held the Tribe to seven hits as the Nats battered Mike Garcia and Satchel Paige for 12. A base on balls by Bob Feller with the bases loaded in the seventh forced in the winning run.

Chicago's White Sox and Philadelphia's Athletics divided a double-header. The Sox, behind Bill Wright, won the second game, 6-3, after Dick Fowler had pitched the A's to a 5-1 triumph in the opener.

Those who fear bigness in business feel that size offers temptation to abuse. Others say that bigness is a good thing for the country because it is efficient. They contend that if abuse ever develops it can be curbed under existing laws.

Trailer Death Is Called Accidental

A coroner's verdict of accidental death was issued today in the case of Victor C. Banzen, 96 Cable street, Buffalo, who was killed Thursday morning when the tractor-trailer in which he was riding crashed into an abutment at the Cementon underpass on Route 9W.

Coroner Ernest A. Kelly said an autopsy determined death was due to strangulation caused by distortion and compression of the head and neck and fractured sternum and skull. The body is being held here pending funeral instructions from relatives in Buffalo.

50 Bodies . . .

known, but firemen said they had established that it started in stateroom No. 462 on the starboard side, two cabins aft of the cocktail bar. Within three minutes after it started, witnesses said, the whole of C deck was afire.

A pier watchman turned in the first alarm after seeing "a glimmer of fire near the stern." Not two minutes after he telephoned, he said, the whole ship seemed afire.

At daylight came, firemen worked with pike pole and shovel in the wreckage, bringing out bodies. Sometimes there were three or four bodies, sometimes only broken, charred parts of bodies.

Chief Coroner Smith Lawson arranged to set up a temporary morgue at the horticultural building of the Canadian National Exhibition four miles west along the lake shore. Relatives and friends were to go there to identify the dead.

Firemen had to cut through the steaming wreckage with torches to bring out many of the charred, unidentified bodies.

All but about 20 of the passengers were said to be United States citizens.

Several scores were on hospital injured lists.

Hundreds of others, awakened by the flames, escaped by jumping to the pier, into the water, or clambering over rails to ships tied up near by.

Captain William Taylor, of Sarnia, Ont., the ship's master, smashed in cabin doors to waken many passengers and carried at least one woman to safety. Crew members said he leaped over the bow as flames closed in on him.

The ship was bound for a cruise today to Prescott and the Thousand Islands.

The fire broke out in the after-section and then roared through the wooden deck structure of the 36-year-old vessel.

It was the worst Great Lakes disaster since 12 crew members died when the Canadian freighter Empress rammed into the Lake Superior rocks and sank June 4, 1947.

Earl E. Boettiger of Cleveland said he thought the fire started in a stateroom near his, on the third deck down from the top.

"We smelled smoke," he said, "My wife and I went out on deck. I found a rope ladder. I helped some of the others, especially the women, to get off, and then went down myself."

Fellow passengers described J. Donald Church of Silver Lake, Ohio, as one of the heroes. He said he thought the fire started in a laundry cupboard near the bar. He went out in a rowboat to pick up three men struggling in the water and got them close to the dock before the boat capsized.

Church was in the bar having a late drink.

The night blaze burned almost five hours before firemen could get aboard. The first alarm sounded at 2:38 a. m.

Eighteen fire trucks and two fire boats called by three alarms fought a futile battle against the blaze at the Canada Steamship Line's pier, at the foot of Bay street.

The ship settled by the stern, her bow pointing toward the city. Her name, "Noronic" gleamed almost unblemished in the daylight, with wreckage and ruin all about. The wooden superstructure of the tow upper decks was burned away and the ship's skeleton was buckled in at least two places.

Steel lifeboats on the starboard side of the upper deck alongside the pier were crumpled like wet paper.

Local Death Record

James Tomaszewski, three-month-old son of Ladislav and Virginia Lahl Tomaszewski, died in this city this morning. In addition to his parents, the child is survived by a brother, Robert; a grandmother, Mrs. Valeria Tomaszewski, and a grandfather, Arthur Lahl, all of Kingston. The funeral will be held Monday at 10 a. m. from the Sweet and Keyser Funeral Home, 167 Tremper avenue. Burial will be in Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home at any time Sunday.

Marcell Escapes Injury; Car Rolls Over 3 Times

Louis Richard Marcelli, 29, of 120 Elmendorf street climbed unhurt from his automobile after it had rolled over three times off the side of Route 9W near Saugerties at 1:30 a. m. today, state police at Lake Katrine reported.

The accident occurred one mile south of Saugerties just after Marcelli had passed a bus as he was traveling south toward Kingston, state police said. According to the troopers' report, Marcelli's automobile apparently went off onto the shoulder of the road when he cut back into his lane after passing the bus. The automobile, a 1949 Nash sedan, was "ruined," troopers said, but there were no personal injuries reported. No arrests were made.

Need for Funds In Polio Epidemic Drive Is Stressed

The desperate need for funds in the polio emergency epidemic drive was stressed today by the officers of the local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Launched last week throughout the nation by Basil O'Connor, the National Foundation president, it is the first emergency drive ever held in the fight against polio in the United States.

It has been termed a "disaster drive" because the high polio incidence, and the high cost of providing medical care have exhausted the epidemic aid fund.

Through March of Dimes funds, hospitals have been equipped and staffed to care for polio patients. Specially trained nurses, doctors and physical therapists were recruited as their additional services were required. Polio equipment has been provided with breathing and life-saving speed.

Whatever the need was, it has been supported with March of Dimes funds. Now, these funds are gone—but the battle is not over. Now cases are occurring every day and the total is expected to reach 40,000 by December. There have been approximately 20,000 cases to date. The money must be provided immediately and abundantly to make sure that no one suffers needless crippling because dollars are too short to pay the cost.

Collections are being taken up for this emergency drive at Read's Theatre on Wall street and at the Broadway Theatre Collections are also being made at the various industrial plants in the city. Those who have not contributed may send their donations to Richard Kalish, City Chairman, Box 116, Kingston, N. Y.

Think Underworld Is Linked to Cohen Death

Valley Stream, N. Y., Sept. 17 (AP)—Police today probed the secret, veiled background of Philip (Little Farel) Cohen on the theory that major underworld activity is behind the gangland slaying of the ex-mobster.

Investigators said there are hints that Cohen, a member of the former Murder, Inc., gang, had been killed because of attempts to "shake down" big-time bookmakers.

The 43-year-old, ex-convict's body, riddled by six slugs, was found tossed on a roadside off the Southern State Parkway here early yesterday.

Since his parole from prison 11 months ago, the short, pudgy Cohen's ostensible business was a partnership in two Brooklyn filling stations, but police said he obviously had other large sources of income.

Before he was slain, police said, they had tried to learn where Cohen's cash came from, but got nowhere.

One theory was that Cohen may have made a strong-arm attempt to move back into the narcotics business. Another was that he had tried to start a new "protection" racket, such as the system by which his old mob preyed on legitimate business firms.

Indianapolis Man Held for Stealing Car

Clifford Gardner, 17, of 1044 South Flemming street, Indianapolis, Ind., was arrested at Goshen Friday by County Investigator Clayton W. Vredenberg and County Identification Officer Leonard Belmont on a charge of grand larceny, second degree. He was taken before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush of the town of Ulster for arraignment.

Last July a car was taken from a Newburgh florist and driven to Kingston. It is charged that the car was taken by another person and abandoned at the entrance to the Rondout creek bridge. Gardner, it is alleged, was traveling down Route 9W from the New England states and stopped for a nap under the bridge on the Port Jervis side. When he awoke he found the car parked at the bridge entrance with the key in the car. He is charged with having taken the car and driving it south to the Poughkeepsie bridge where he was halted when he was unable to produce the necessary toll. Poughkeepsie police were notified and they traced the car to Newburgh ownership.

Gardner was turned over to the Newburgh police. Later it was ascertained that the car had been taken by another person from Newburgh and driven to Ulster county where allegedly Gardner then took it when he found it abandoned. He was brought to Ulster county to face a charge of taking the car.
